I loved my school alot. It is a small private school that provided me with great educations, athletics, and an amazing overall high school experience.

We have two children at Maclay. Both started in PreK and while being two completely different kids, they have both thrived at Maclay. Maclay has provided them a truly well-rounded education - from formal academics to character guidance and after school intramural sports, there simply isn't another school in the region that compares. Our children are invested in the sense of community, feel safe to explore their individual potential, and are proud to be Marauders.

The school is very teacher centric, rather than student centric. The teachers and staff are also underqualified and their lack of qualifications is demonstrated in their very authoritarian behavior towards students. The school is also highly lacking in diversity and many faculty and staff members demonstrate racist attitudes. Given the cost of tuition, the school should be very student and families centric and focus on improving faculty and staff attitudes and skills.

Were you cherished by your teachers in high school? Did you even think that was possible? It is at Maclay. The Maclay faculty provide a warm, challenging learning environment where students actively participate in learning. Because of smaller class sizes, they know each student well, and can adapt curriculum to their needs. When I compared Maclay to my neighborhood high school, I asked the HARD questions: will my kids fit in, no matter what walk of life they're from; do kids get their first choice of classes; can my children participate in excellent varsity athletics and a variety of clubs; do kids actually pass the AP exams; will kids get outstanding guidance on college applications; and, will the teachers be able to write your child a great recommendation? My neighborhood school said 'no' to many of those questions, but at Maclay's responses were all a resounding "YES!" My kids are thriving. They love their classes and activities. I'm grateful every day for Maclay.

Maclay has been a great environment for my children. Coming from another private school here in town, we were worried about the transition. Needless to say, my children did just fine. Both of my children are excelling in their academics. The teachers are phenomenal, especially Mr. Norment, Dr. Day, Dr. Fitzpatrick, Mrs. Fantle, Miss Armstrong, Mrs. Hunter, Mrs. Walker, Mrs. Maferer and so many others! I've had many people ask why Maclay? That's simple, I'm investing in my children's future. There is no better gift, than that of a great education.
